The Zebra Protocol

The Zebra Protocol is a fictional handshake used by migrating data herds.

Each node announces itself with alternating black and white packets.

A handshake completes after exactly seven stripes are exchanged.

Zebra Protocol Failure Modes

If a node sends two black packets in a row, the herd marks it as a lion.

Lions are quarantined for ninety seconds before they may rejoin.